FACTS OF DOCTORS' CRIME TRUST TO GO TO GRAND JURY

Death Penalty Not Too Severe, Says Justice, Sentencing Doctor Who Confessed.

One of the most remarkable confessions ever made by a convicted criminal was that submitted to Justice Weeks in the Criminal Court today as he was about to sentence Dr. Andre L. Stapler, who was up for sentence for having performed a criminal operation.

In sentencing Dr. Stapler to Sing Sing for a term of not less than five years and four months or more than eleven years and six months Justice Weeks referred to the confession, declaring it to be the most amazing statement that he had ever read. The Justice stated, however, that he did not believe Dr. Stapler had told all he knew.

"It is my belief," Justice Weeks said, "that the defendant has, for purposes of his own, protected the men higher up in this nefarious practice. He knew that the certificate of death issued by the Coroner's Office was not a true one and he knows what prompted its issuance."

Confirmation of the confessions made by Dr. Stapler has been obtained by the District Attorney from physicians, hospital attendants and others. Two physicians now serving long sentences in Sing Sing for manslaughter resulting from criminal operations have furnished the District Attorney with statements that many of the instances of sudden deaths revealed by Dr. Stapler in his confession are true.

As a result of Dr. Stapler's confession and the corroborations of it obtained by Mr. Dooling, a Grand Jury inquiry will be started.

In the trial of Dr. Stapler evidence was given showing the administration of Coroner's offices in the conduct of inquiries into deaths of this class was loose.

Assistant District Attorney Dooling's detectives have brought to light many cases similar to that for which Dr. Stapler was convicted. So numerous are these that District Attorney Swann and Mr. Dooling became satisfied early in the investigation that there is a conspiracy among certain physicians and others to evade the law.

A prominent official in the District Attorney's office to-day predicted that many indictments will be found when the Grand Jury finishes its work.

The crime for which Dr. Stapler was tried resulted in the death of Mrs. Louise Heinrichs, at No. 500 West One Hundred and Eleventh Street, in August, 1910.

The woman died from an illegal operation, but the records of the Coroner's Office show death was due to acute gastritis.

In sentencing Dr. Stapler Justice Weeks denounced him as "a menace to the social structure of the country."

"Under the old law," continued Justice Weeks, "a defendant convicted of the crime of which you have been convicted would have the death penalty imposed. In my careful consideration of your case and your statement I have several times referred to the conclusion that such a penalty would be very appropriate for you—not because of this one crime but because of the number of cases that preceded it. I shall impose a sentence which will allow you, by good behavior, to leave State's prison in time to rehabilitate yourself and possibly become a respectable member of society."

BALTIMORE FEDS FIGHT DISMISSAL OF SUIT
File Objections in Court to Organized Baseball's Motion to Drop Federal League's Action.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—The Baltimore Club of the Federal League presented objections to-day to Organized Baseball's motion to dismiss the famous Federal League suit when counsel for the Organized Leagues moved to discontinue the action in Judge Landis's court.

F. L. Schwartz of St. Louis, representing the Federal League interests, contested Attorney George W. Miller's motion, made on behalf of the National Commission.

"The Baltimore Club objects to this dismissal," Schwartz said.

Dismissal of the suit, which was filed Jan. 5, 1915, was one of the conditions of the baseball peace by which the Federal League went out of existence. The Baltimore Club owners at that time indicated that the plan to put an International League team in Baltimore did not satisfy them, and it was said in baseball circles that they have since resisted efforts to get them to change their views.

Judge K. M. Landis, who heard the arguments for an injunction and who has had the case under advisement for a year, in ordering to-day's motion put over until Monday, directed that the Baltimore Club should be notified by telegram and be ready to present its case at that time.

BABY IN FLAT DUEL AND WINS IN COURT

Mother Who Accused Neighbor Is Scolded by Magistrate for Infant's Wails.

"Is a crying baby in an apartment house worse than the constant wailing of a phonograph?"

This question was brought before Magistrate Simms in the West Side Police Court to-day and he decided against the baby. Not only that, but he rebuked the mother of the baby for having permitted the little fellow to cry continuously and said he would refer the case to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The question was brought into court by Mrs. Charles P. Blaney, whose husband is a lawyer at No. 26 Liberty Street. The Blaneys live in the apartment house at No. 306 West Ninety-fourth Street. In an adjoining apartment Miss Kathleen Robinson lives with her brother, John, and their parents.

While the Blaneys are the proud possessors of a twenty-months-old baby boy, Miss Robinson has a phonograph to care for. The Blaney baby cried at night. Miss Robinson didn't like it. Neither did other tenants of the building. Finally Miss Robinson placed her phonograph on a "cradle" in a room next to the one where Baby Blaney was crying, and it then became Baby versus Phonograph in concert that lasted until long past midnight.

Then Mrs. Blaney summoned Miss Robinson to court for disturbing the baby and the whole family with the phonograph.

"Why," the Blaney baby cried all the time," said Miss Robinson in court to-day. "The noise made my sister ill and I had to transform the bedroom next to the Blaney apartment into a sitting room. Naturally, I put the phonograph there."

Martin S. White, a traveling man who lives above the Blaney flat, came to the assistance of Miss Robinson. He said he was the father of a baby himself, but that when Baby Blaney began howling it made a nervous wreck of him.

"The child is perfectly normal," said Mrs. Blaney. "It has been sick and that's the reason it cried a great deal. Then when I would get it to sleep the phonograph would start up."

"You are at fault," Magistrate Simms told Mrs. Blaney as he dismissed the charge against Miss Robinson. "You should not have complained much about the talking machine."

Thereupon Miss Robinson wanted to make a charge against Mrs. Blaney, but the Court said the matter would be referred to the S. P. C. C.

OPERATORS NOT READY FORMALLY TO REJECT DEMANDS OF MINERS

Attitude Hostile to Surrender to Workers, but Results of Conference Are Awaited.

The anthracite coal operators announced to-day there had been a wrong construction put on the statement issued last night after a conference of representatives of nineteen companies in this city yesterday. The statement was not intended, they said, to be a formal rejection of the demands of the 147,000 miners. There can be no positive declaration at this point until after the conference between the operators and representatives of the miners, they declared.

It was explained that the preliminary announcement was intended to acquaint the public, and especially consumers of anthracite, of the facts at issue, so far as the coal operators know them. In spite of the explanation, however, there are no facts at hand to show that the anthracite operators will make the concessions demanded by the miners, which include an eight-hour day, 30 per cent. increase in wages, a two-year working agreement and recognition of the United Mine Workers of America.

The anthracite operators will go into conference with the miners' representatives on Feb. 21 at the Hotel McAlpin.

S. D. Warriner, president of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, has been selected Chairman of the committee of operators. One proposition which the operators will put forward, in the event of a disagreement, will be reference of the dispute to the Board of Conciliation. It is said the miners do not desire such a reference, but want their representatives to have a directing hand in the settlement.

"Is a crying baby in an apartment house worse than the constant wailing of a phonograph?"

Park tragedy of Sunday night is the testimony of Grace J. Teiper, sister of the prisoner held at Police Headquarters in connection with the crime. It is now believed that the girl will ultimately recover her reason sufficiently to give a connected account of the happenings of the tragic night. Early to-day she aroused from her coma and asked for a glass of water. She said she had been pounded when asked how she was hurt.

With the February Grand Jury due to convene Monday, it is believed that there will not be much change in the present status of the case until that time. John Edward Teiper's attorneys have announced that for the present they will take no step to force the issue. In the meantime Teiper occupies a cell at Police Headquarters.
